Mrs. Hughes Heads Council Of Clubs

WORK FOR YEAR OUTLINED IN MEETING AT METHODIST CHURCH

The first meeting of the year of the Greencastle Council of Clubs was held on Thursday afternoon at the Methodist church, the vice-president, Mrs. L. R. Eckardt, presiding.

After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by the secretary, Mrs. James Zeis, Mrs. Frank Jones, chairman of the nominating committee which had served before the election meeting in May, announced the very recent resignation of the president, Mrs. J. H. Pitchford, and nominated Mrs. Curtis Hughes to succeed her, and Mrs. Bence Daggy to take the place of Mrs. Hughes as treasurer. The council elected Mrs. Hughes and Mrs. Daggy as president and treasurer.

In a brief report Mrs. O. H. Smith said that the state health department is urging the council to become interested in pure food as well as clean food. She again asked members, old and new, to refuse to buy the foods displayed in any of our stores contrary to law. Mrs. Smith also brought encouragement to the council in an expression by a well known business man of the city of his appreciation of the effort to put all competitors in foodstuffs, whether their stores were large or small, on the same basis of a square deal for the public by observance of the law.

An hour was given to suggestions and recommendations by members, old and new, as to work of the council the coming year.

While the dominant interests will be public health, co-operation with the nursing committee of the Putnam county health unit, assistance in making up into garments the cotton provided by the Red Cross and hearty co-operation with C. C. Gautier in relief work, encouragement of other movements for the improvement of the town and for the benefit of all its residents will be considered by the new executive board.

The membership of the council is as follows:
The Boston Club: President, Mrs. L. H. Dirks; council member, Mrs. Curtis Hughes.
The Business and Professions Women's Club: President, Miss Helen Black, council member, Mrs. Hanna Hardacre.
Century Club: President, Mrs. Frank Donner, council member, Mrs. L. R. Eckardt.
Child Welfare: President Mrs. Bence Daggy, council member, Mrs. Frank Jones.

BAYONETING OF WOUNDED IS CHARGED

BOLIVIAN DEMAND PLANES BE SENT TO PARAGUAY AS RESULT

REPORT SENT TO LEAGUE

Stretcher Bearers Also Bayoneted During Battle Of Boqueron. Angry Crowds Swarm LaPaz.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Sept. 17, (UP)—Angry crowds in the streets of the Bolivian capital demanded today that airplanes be sent to bomb Asuncion, Paraguay, after Bolivia charged to the League of Nations that Paraguayan soldiers bayoneted Bolivian wounded and stretcher bearers at Fort Boqueron, in the Gran Chaco.

"We inform the League of Nations of violation of the Hague convention, as our wounded in the battle of Boqueron are killed by Paraguayans with knives and bayonets, and equal fate is shared by stretcher bearers retrieving the wounded," the Bolivian note to the league said.

Military headquarters denied a report broadcast from Buenos Aires that the Bolivians had raised the white flag at Fort Boqueron, where Bolivians and Paraguayans have engaged in desperate fighting. If the white flag was raised, it was merely for the opportunity of burying numerous dead, military officials said.

Officials did not disclose the gravity of the situation at Fort Boqueron, where Bolivians have withstood heavy artillery bombardments and infantry attacks from a superior Paraguayan force. It was feared that the Bolivians might be driven from the fort eventually by the threat of epidemic even if they were able to withstand the Paraguayan attack.

The Paraguayans were said to be concentrating all their first line troops in the attack, leaving only skeleton protection for other defenses in the Gran Chaco. Military headquarters claimed that the defenders of the fort inflicted heavy casualties on the attacking Paraguayans with machine gun and rifle fire.

Boxing Show By Elks Is Success

LARGE CROWD PRESENT FOR EXHIBITION IN BANNER CLUB

A boxing exhibition staged by the Greencastle Elks, featured by the appearance of Tracy Cox, Indianapolis, a former Greencastle boy, in the Banner club rooms Friday night, was a big success, a large crowd turning out for the five bouts in addition to the sparring rounds by Cox.

The exhibition was opened with two rounds by Noble Wallace and Red Holloway, Indianapolis lightweights, followed by the appearance of Cox who sparred successively with Willard Brown, lightweight champion of Indiana, Young Leach, Red Holloway and Wallace, all of Indianapolis.

Cox was introduced by Mayor W. L. Denman and was given a big hand by local boxing fans. One of the biggest fights of his ring career is to be staged in Indianapolis next Tuesday.

Following the appearance of Cox, Brown and Leach boxed two rounds.

Two local colored boys, Russell Taggart and Russell Cartwright, next appeared on the program, boxing three rounds which ended with Cartwright staggering from a near knock-out punch by Taggart.

Bud Taylor, of Terre Haute, former bantamweight champion and later a lightweight title contender, next appeared with his proteges. They were Harold Ferris and Ernie Britt, who went three fast rounds. Donald Fagg, Clinton, and Red Callahan, Muncie, ended the program with three rounds.

Taylor referred the last two mix-ups while Bill Bowman of Indianapolis is referred the previous bouts.

ROOSEVELT IS GUEST OF MORMON CITY

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE FOR PRESIDENT ARRIVES IN SALT LAKE FROM DENVER

WILL SPEAK THIS EVENING

New York Governor To Deliver Second Major Address Of Tour In Famous Utah Tabernacle

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Sept. 17, (UP)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt entered Utah today to expound his views on the silver question, one of paramount importance to this state in particular and to the far west in general.

Roosevelt, Democratic presidential nominee, acclaimed by 10,000 noisy partisans, planned to remain here until Sunday. He will deliver the second major address of his transcontinental "stop, look, and listen" tour at the Mormon tabernacle tonight.

Utah, whose economic life is largely bound up with the price of silver, one of its principal products, was anxious to hear what the governor had to say on the subject. The price of the white metal is low now, too low, the producers assert, for them to mine with profit.

They point out that if the price of silver could be stabilized industry in this state not only would be aided immeasurably, but trade with the Orient, which uses silver as a monetary standard of exchange and barter, would be revived, thereby bolstering business in other areas.

The principal theme of the governor's address, however, was expected to deal with the railroad situation throughout the country.

The governor came to Utah after a long dusty train ride from Denver, Colo. He stopped off at Cheyenne, Wyo., where he met Governor George H. Dern of Utah. At stations along the line he made brief appearances, urging that the cow country join with the agricultural middle west in support of the Democratic national ticket.

Roosevelt planned conferences with political leaders during the day, to attend a luncheon and a dinner, and to take a brief drive to points of interest.

On Sunday the governor will attend Episcopal church services in this strong Mormon community and later go to the home of Governor Dern, where he will be a luncheon guest. Before departing for Butte, Mont., that afternoon, Roosevelt also will attend a flower show and hold a public reception.

Nominee's Mother Is Seriously Ill

CONDITION OF MRS. SARAH GARNER REPORTED CRITICAL SATURDAY

DETROIT, Tex., Sept. 17, (UP)—Mrs. Sarah Garner, the 81 year old mother of John Nance Garner, Democratic vice-presidential candidate, today was gravely ill at her home here.

Physicians, holding slight hope for her recovery, advised relatives to notify her distinguished son, now in Washington, of her condition.

Mrs. Garner became ill, suffering with a general toxic condition, a week ago, and has grown steadily weaker, it was said.

Mrs. Maude Blair, a daughter with whom the aged woman lives, said the family had decided to notify the vice-presidential candidate of his mother's condition, although they had hesitated to do so since he is busy with campaign plans.

Mrs. Garner was born, and has spent her entire life in this section. Until recently, she rejoiced in recalling incidents in the boyhood life of her noted son, and in telling stories of the early days of Texas.

Garner has not visited her for some months. He had planned to come here in July when he returned after congress adjourned to his home in Uvalde.

GERMAN ELECTIONS TO BE HELD NOVEMBER 6

BERLIN, Sept. 17 (UP)—The government decided today to hold the new Reichstag elections November 6, subject to approval of President Paul von Hindenburg. The president is expected to approve the date.

The short-lived Reichstag recently was dissolved by Chancellor Franz von Papen, on authority of the president, during a tumultuous session in which it attempted to pass a vote of misconfidence in the cabinet's one-year economic recovery plan.

The father, who had been using the extension while repairing an auto, found the body.

Suicide Closes Murder Mystery

BODY OF MISSING WOMAN IS FOUND UNDER BASEMENT FLOOR

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Sept. 17 (UP)—Mrs. Edith DuBois heard and possibly watched her handsome gentleman husband dig the sub-cellar grave in which her own body was found a few hours after he solved a five-week mystery by killing himself, a letter revealed today.

Not many days before the 40-year-old wife of Charles Edwin DuBois mysteriously vanished from their Great Herring Pond summer bungalow, she wrote to a friend, a Mrs. Gillet, of Hastings-on-the-Hudson.

The gist of her letter, as quoted by assistant district attorney John V. Sullivan, read:

"Charlie has not been himself for at least six months. He has acted like a crazy man on account of that woman. He would go down into the cellar and dig and then come up and not say a word. He has been working down in the cellar all of the time."

The husband she acquired as a result of a French matrimonial magazine ad, was digging the grave into which the assistant district attorney was satisfied he placed the body of his wife, killed that he might remarry.

The irony of the situation, however, was that DuBois cheated the law which tried to charge him with murder, but was frustrated by failure to find the body of a murder victim until after the jeweler had slain himself.

DuBois was in love with Miss Grace Atwood, New York university graduate and daughter of a wealthy Massachusetts manufacturer. He had planned to marry her, she said. A letter she wrote said that "now we can marry because the last obstacle has been removed." And legal papers were found in which property title was transferred to Mrs. Grace DuBois, shortly after Mrs. Edith DuBois vanished.

Assistant district attorney Sullivan held today, however, that Miss Atwood was the innocent victim of a love affair whose tragic scenes were unsuspected. He exonerated her of any guilty knowledge of the crime.

Miss Atwood was in seclusion, her father said, and would remain so for some time. She wrote the "last obstacle" letter, it was explained, because she had been told, as others were told, that Mrs. DuBois was killed in a motor accident in Canada.

Sullivan also exonerated Larry Frazer and the DuBois chauffeur, who (Continued on Page Two)

G. O. P. TURNS WISTFUL EYES TOWARD IDAHO

HOOVER'S ENDORSEMENT BY SENATOR BORAH HOPED FOR BY REPUBLICANS

NOTED SOLON BIDES HIS TIME

Borah's Stand Against The Soldier Bonus Seen As Good Sign By Delaware Senator

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17, (UP)—Republican party managers are turning longing eyes toward Idaho where Senator William E. Borah is biding his time.

His endorsement of President Hoover would do more than anything else that the party managers can suggest to rally Republican morale from the defection of the Maine election.

An effort to smoke him out appears to have been started. After a conference at the White House, Senator Hastings, Repn., Del., said Senator Borah's declaration against the soldier bonus following the action of the American Legion this week definitely had put him on the Republican side.

"He is in at the back door," said Senator Hastings, "but that's better than not at all."

Senator Borah, asked by the United Press to comment on Hastings' statement, made light of the announcement.

"I knew Senator Hastings had many accomplishments, but I did not know he was a humorist," Borah telegraphed.

Borah has said nothing about his attitude toward President Hoover since his speech in the senate just after the Republican national convention when he declared he could not support Mr. Hoover on the Chicago platform.

Since then he has said that the west was any man's fight and that October was early enough to talk politics.

The leonine senator from the big potato country stands with relation to the Hoover campaign in much the same position that former Governor Alfred E. Smith stands toward the Roosevelt campaign. Each is silent. Each is regarded as able to influence a large number of votes.

Though Senator Borah campaigned for Mr. Hoover four years ago they have had many differences of policy since. But now with Governor Roosevelt swinging through the west, with evidences from many quarters of a tide running toward the Democratic ticket—even Senator George Moses has cut the predicted margin of Republican electoral votes to 22—the Republican management longs for some mighty voice in the west. It wants someone to offset the pro-Roosevelt utterances of Senator George W. Norris, Repn., Neb. In fact, the Republican party is ripe to welcome some champion of Roosevelt's "forgotten man" as its spokesman in the west. Overtures have been made to Borah. He has refused to state his intentions. So the campaign to wear him down and bring him into line continues.

Senator Howell, Repn., Neb., returned here from the Pacific coast feeling that the outcome in the west was "in the lap of the gods" and that it would be decided in the next 60 days. Walter Newton, White House secretary, is in Minnesota checking over the situation. Reports put Missouri as likely to go Democratic. Democratic primary voting in Colorado, Arizona and other states have revealed a drift which Republicans now realize must be checked.

Miss Harriet Grace Barnum Is Bride Of Mr. Elmer Ihrig

Surprising their large number of friends here and in other parts of Florida, Miss Harriet Grace Barnum, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Howard J. Barnum of the Southern college department of music, and Mr. Elmer Ihrig, director of athletics at the Ringling college of fine and liberal arts, Sarasota, were married in the drawing room of Southern's dormitory for women July 29, 1932, before a group of faculty members and summer school students. Dr. Ludd M. Spivey, president of Southern, performed the ceremony.

Because the nuptial event had not been announced, faculty and students did not know the identity of the couple until the latter entered the drawing room for the ceremony. Notified that there was to be a wedding and that classes were to be halted, the college group went to the drawing room at the hour indicated, and the ceremony began soon afterward.

Accompanied by the bridegroom, the bride appeared at the stairway in the front of the room and descended to a point directly in front of Dr. Spivey. Wagner's "The Prize Song" from "The Meister Singer" and the wedding march from "Lohengrin" were played by Professor Barnum, violinist, with Mrs. Barnum playing the piano accompaniment.

The bride was attired in a sports dress of white lace with blue accessories. She wore a diamond pin which is an heirloom in her father's family. The hastily decorated room was attractive with palms and baskets of pink roses.

Mrs. Ihrig has been instructor in violin at the Ringling school since September, 1930. She was graduated

Lesson for September 18

THE REPORTS OF THE SPIES

GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?
LESSON TEXT—Numbers 13:17-14:45.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Two Brave Spies.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Scouting Through the Promised Land.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Brave and the Cowardly Scouts.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Faith Gives Courage.

I. The Spies Sent Out (13:17-20).

Less than two years have passed since the Israelites were delivered from Egyptian bondage. They are now at Kadesh-barnea under sight of the Promised Land. Moses urged them to go in and take immediate possession (Deut. 1:21). But they failed to do so because of unbelief (Heb. 3:19). The record in Deuteronomy 1:19-25 shows that God did not take the initiative in sending out the spies, but that the people, because of lack of faith, made the request. There was a threefold purpose in sending out the spies:

1. To see whether the land was as God had told them (v. 18).
2. To see whether the people who dwell there were strong or weak, few or many (v. 18).
3. And to see whether the cities were made up of strongholds or of tents (v. 19).

II. The Commission Executed (13:21-23).

They entered the land from the south and traversed it to its northern limits. On their return they gathered some specimens of fruit.

III. The Spies Rendered Reports (13:23-33).

On their return this committee of explorers rendered both a majority and minority report to the entire congregation (v. 26).

1. The majority report (vv. 26-29).

a. "The land floweth with milk and honey" (v. 27).
b. The people who live there are strong (v. 28).
c. The people live in walled cities (v. 28).

d. The land is inhabited by giants (v. 28 cf. v. 33).

In comparison with the inhabitants they saw themselves as grasshoppers. Furthermore, they saw the people so distributed that it seemed impossible to conquer them.

2. The minority report (vv. 30-33).

This report in part agreed with the first. It did not ignore the difficulties nor dispute the facts, but it did deny the conclusion of the majority. They did not minimize the task before them, but asserted that with God's help they were well able to get possession of the land, and therefore urged immediate action.

IV. The Rebellion of the People. (14:1-44).

1. This rebellion began by crying (vv. 1-3). They even wished that they had died in the wilderness or in Egypt. God took them at their word. He sent them back to wander in the wilderness for thirty-eight years, during which time all of that generation died except Caleb and Joshua.

2. Proposition to return to Egypt (vv. 4-10).

They proposed to select a captain as their leader. Joshua and Caleb protested against this, which so exasperated the people that they were about to stone them when God manifested his glory before all Israel in vindication of the loyalty of Joshua and Caleb.

3. God's wrath upon the people (vv. 11, 12).

Because of their unbelief God purposed to smite them with pestilence, disinherit them, and supplant them with a nation mightier than they.

4. Moses' intercession in behalf of the people (vv. 13-19).

Moses pleaded with God against this judgment because the Egyptians would hear of it and blaspheme and this they would pass on to the other nations, saying that God was not able to bring them into the land.

5. The Lord's response to Moses' plea (vv. 20-23).

He assured Moses that he had granted pardon according to his intercession but told him that although he would bring them into the land according to his promise, yet with the exception of Joshua and Caleb the men of that generation should be debarred.

6. The presumption of the people (vv. 40-44).

Having in unbelief refused to go up at the command of Moses, they now in presumption go.

V. The People Smitten by the Amalekites and Canaanites (v. 45).

Because the people refused to heed Moses and presumptuously attempted to go up, God permitted the Amalekites and Canaanites to come down upon them to their destruction.

RANDOM THOUGHTS

There is never a gospel in a growth.

The man who forgets to pray may regret that he has lived another day.

Vinegar is the result of ferment; the less you carry round with you the better off you will be.

Some of us are weak and some strong; the helping hand of the strong should be held out to the weak.

"Matter" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 18.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Then the Lord answered Job out of the whirlwind, and said, Hath the rain a father? or who hath begotten the drops of dew? Canst thou bind the sweet influences of Pleiades, or loose the bands of Orion? Canst thou bring forth Mazzaroth in his season? or canst thou guide Arcturus with his sons? Knowest thou the ordinances of heaven? canst thou set the dominion thereof in the earth" (Job 38:1, 28, 31-33).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "In proportion as matter loses to human sense all entity as man, in that proportion does man become its master. He enters into a diviner sense of the facts, and comprehends the theology of Jesus as demonstrated in healing the sick, raising the dead, and walking over the waves. All these deeds manifested Jesus' control over the belief that matter is substance, that it can be the arbiter of life or the constructor of any form of existence" (p. 369).

ator Fess, Repn., O., once called a "pseudo Republican" and almost rates in the group which Senator George Moses named "sons of the wild jack-ass."

Yet with Governor Roosevelt in Salt Lake City today, tickling voters of the mountain states with a discussion of doing something about silver, even the most conservative of Republicans wouldn't mind seeing some of Doctor Borah's soothing syrup ladled out for the west—in mild doses of course.

NEIGHBORS' COMPLAINTS
BRING ON JAIL SENTENCE

TOPEKA, Kan., (UP)—Neighbors lodged charges in police court against Claude Ewing, accusing him of disturbing the peace and using vile language.

It seems from the evidence Claude had developed a habit of stepping out on his front porch late at night swathed in his pajamas, and making enough noise to upset the peace of the neighborhood.

Claude had a stout defense. His wife testified her husband was subject to nightmares, and that he "roared like a lion" when under the spell.

Judge William Steinrauf had a thought. He told Claude, after ruling him guilty on both counts and sentencing him to 30 days in jail, that if he would submit to a medical examination for a method of stopping the nightmares, the sentence would be suspended.

Indignantly Claude refused. Judge Steinrauf ordered him committed.

Snake Is Out of Jam, Into Jar

The battle of the century is over. This ten-inch garden snake, which fought for twenty-four days to free itself from the spider's web in which it became entangled in a shack at St. Charles, Illinois, was saved from death by the kind intervention of Mayor I. G. Langum of St. Charles, who released the reptile. The mayor ended the battle between the snake and spider when the Chicago Humane Educational Society informed him that the whole fight was illegal. The snake now reposes peacefully in a jar on the mayor's desk. The picture was taken while the battle still raged.

'MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY'

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY COVIEL-FRIEDL INC., DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

From what the receipt of a death threat, let's see, known as "The Night Club Lady," is mysteriously slain in her penthouse apartment at 12 a. m. New Year's Eve. Hugh Baldwin reports death due to heart failure. The only clue to the murderer is a medical laboratory specimen box outside Lola's window. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt attaches importance to a young man named Basil whose photograph is found in Lola's room. It is known that Lola quarreled with Guy Everett and Vincent Rowland, a lawyer, over investments. Eunice, the maid, confessed she was employed by Everett to report the goings on in the apartment. The mystery deepens with the finding of the body of Christine Quires, Lola's guest. Christine had been killed before Lola and her body hidden until an opportune moment arrived for the murderer to place it, soaking wet, in Lola's room. The findings are similar to those in Lola's case except that Christine's neck was bruised after death. Everett, Christine's last escort, claims he left her at the apartment elevator at midnight New Year's Eve, and then sent for a ride on the Motor Parkway, alone, arriving home after 3 a. m. Mrs. Carewe informs Colt that Christine lived with a brother, Edgar, in Rochester, and was to receive her inheritance shortly. Lola's room is vacuum cleaned and the dust particles sent to Professor Luckner for analysis. Colt sends to the medical examiner a hypodermic syringe taken from Baldwin's bag and a strap for analysis, also a strand of Christine's hair found near Lola's window. The Commissioner orders Basil's picture telephoned to M. Dupont, head of the Paris Police. It is learned that Edgar Quires received a telegram New Year's Eve and left for New York. Paper and ink identical with the death threat materials are found under Eunice's mattress. Everett's Motor Parkway libel is shattered. Colt requests the Prefect of the Parisian Surete to investigate Lola's past. Rowland discloses that Everett wanted to marry Lola and was jealous of Dr. Baldwin. Colt believes revenge the motive for the murders.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

"I WAS very glad," remarked Dougherty, "that you got that hypodermic syringe from Doctor Baldwin. I would not be surprised if he were an active part of the scheme."

"But how do you connect Baldwin with the case at all—under your jewel-theft theory?"

"He was her doctor. Doctors often find out the most secret of family affairs. She may have him in her power. Don't forget what Eunice James told us."

"And is that as far as you go?" he asked mildly.

"Oh, there are lots of details still to be cleared—we haven't got a case at the moment—but we can get it by digging!"

"There is so much that is left unexplained," Colt pointed out.

"Such as?"

"Oh, major mysteries and minor mysteries—and it will take a smarter cop than I, at this stage of the game, to tell which is major and which is minor."

"Nevertheless?"

"Mrs. Carewe says she is an Englishwoman. Yet she speaks with an almost indetectable foreign accent. Why should she lie about her origin?"

"But that isn't necessarily important, Thatcher!"

"Real clues often do not seem to be necessarily important when you find them. Like that picture of Basil on Lola's bureau. You can call it guess-work if you like, but I know that I have seen those earnest, eager features somewhere before. I cannot get that unknown boy's face out of my mind. The picture may not necessarily be important—but I believe it is. The mention of his name threw old Mrs. Carewe into a fit. Yet she said she did not know his last name. And Lola had been kissing the portrait—the scarlet mark of her lip-stick was on the glass."

"You consider these major mysteries?" asked Dougherty lugubriously.

"Time will tell. Certainly the question of Christine Quires' movements between twelve-fifteen o'clock, when she left the elevator and four o'clock, when we discovered her lying stiff, wet and dead is a major mystery. We searched those rooms thoroughly—we still do not know where she could have been concealed, although I have a theory about that. How did she get into the apartment without being seen by the three people in the place? And how did her killer get in—if none of the three persons present in the apartment is guilty?"

"Those questions, I agree, are for the moment unanswerable," rumbled Dougherty.

"Yet there are others that pique my curiosity even more," continued the Commissioner. "Why is it, for example, that the two rooms of mother and daughter offer such a crazy contrast to the rest of the apartment—and to each other?"

"Does it matter?"

"I don't know. But the contrasts remains—a peasant simplicity in the mother's room, a garish old-fashioned mid-Victorian fussiness in the daughter's—and the rest of the rooms in chaste modern simplicity. There is something behind that, Dougherty."

"Sounds metaphysical to me!"

"And without metaphysics I have seldom seen any mystery solved. There is the curious three-months' visit of this heiress at Lola's home. Why? Lola had never had any other friend visit her for so long. Your jewel theory may be right—but Christine had no jewels to amount to anything. She was heiress to a million. Did Lola intend to advise her about investments, as she did Guy Everett? Mrs. Carewe hinted at something of the kind. There is a lead that promises some-thing. But if it does lead us anywhere, then we shall have to ask ourselves a harder question—why should Lola or anyone else want Christine to die before she received her inheritance?"

"The girl knew too much about the jewel racket," insisted Dougherty. "I'll bet you find that her brother inherits the money after her."

"But Lola has never met the brother. You see, there is some essential factor that keeps evading us all the time—when we find that missing segment, the rest of the pieces probably will fall into place. Why was Guy Everett so nervous when we questioned him? Did he really go on a solitary auto ride last night? What method was used to kill these two women? Dougherty, old man, I could go on indefinitely reciting the riddles that still have to be answered in this perplexing case!"

"And when you get all through you'll come back to my jewel-ring idea," predicted Dougherty, gratefully accepting a second glass from the Jamaican butler.

"Perhaps," conceded Colt, "but in the meanwhile, you would not have us overlook the other possibilities within the ambit of this inquiry."

"No. But I can't keep whiffing from one opinion to another. You mean—"

"I mean that, granting at the moment we do not know how Lola Carewe and Christine Quires were slain, there are a number of people who might have killed them. We begin with Guy Everett. He had a motive of one kind or another; it seems trivial, but if he had a grudge against Lola and Christine, he might have slain them—sordid, if you like—but sheer malice has served as the motive of many murders in our records. Then there was the elevator boy. Not a very dignified or likely suspect—and yet, so far as we know, he was the last person to see Christine Quires while she was conscious. Eunice James seems to have had no motive at all—yet she might have. But Mrs. Carewe was annoyed by Christine's presence in the apartment—in senile madness, she might have killed her daughter and guest. Chung had his reasons. Never forget the fury of the Cyclops—the malicious vengeance of the ugly man who considers himself a superior being, who loves and is turned down. Perhaps, indeed, so did Vincent Rowland have a motive. Or Doctor Baldwin, unapt to do such a deed, yet with opportunities, as you very wisely suggest. Again, the brother would have a million-dollar reason for wishing to get rid of his sister—and God knows he would not be the first brother to kill his sister with tricky deceitfulness and for the same reason. I could go on, widening the list, but for our purposes the ones I have named are sufficient."

"I believe there was more than one murderer. There were at least two. Whatever happened, it was too complicated for just one person to get away with it," declared Dougherty fervently.

"Bravo, Dougherty," cried Thatcher Colt. "Your reasoning sounds accurate. But what if the poor girls were the accomplices in their own execution?"

"I hadn't thought of that," confessed Dougherty. "Sounds metaphysical again. How could they be?"

"I don't know—but there are several theories that occur to me."

"The very look of the corpse," declared Dougherty, "suggested poison to me. Have you formed any notion as to what kind of poison might have been used?"

"Not in the least. But Multooler has promised the earliest possible word. In any case, I still feel we are dealing with a highly superior criminal intelligence. Even as far as we have gone, we can see that the plan was outrageously well worked out."

Colt lit his pipe.

"If the poison," he resumed, "had reached the girl on the tip of an arrow blown from a blow-gun, a sabre, or something of that sort, our job would have been much simpler. But Multooler says there is not an open wound on her body. Our guilty one has already evinced a truly infernal cunning, thinking to commit the perfect crime, no doubt. Of course we three in this room know there is no such thing. There is always a flaw in these perfectly planned atrocities. There is a flaw somewhere in this pent-house business tonight—only we haven't found it yet."

The telephone bell rang. From my extension, I heard the brittle voice of the Assistant Medical Examiner greeting Thatcher Colt.

"Hello, Mr. Colt! Say, this case gets funnier every time you turn around. I don't care how mysterious it sounds, it begins to look like those two girls died natural deaths. At least, I can't find any poison in them."

I heard the sharp intake of Colt's breath. It was a body blow to his plans. What hope was there of tracing a murder, if the police were unable to prove the girls had died unnaturally?

"How thorough was your examination?" asked the Commissioner.

"I had six assistants working with me—we went through everything including the viscera."

"You found no symptoms at all?" demanded Colt, amazed.

"Well, I found a very queer condition in both cadavers, but I don't know what it means. There was a congestion of the muscles around the two hearts, you see—sufficient to cause death. But the valves of the hearts showed every indication that they had been functioning properly all their lives."

"Just one minute," interrupted Colt. "Are you certain of that last statement?"

"Of course, Mr. Colt!"

CADLE WITHDRAWS

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 17 (UP)—Placing religion above politics, E. Howard Cadle, Evangelist, today withdrew as candidate for Governor of Indiana on the prohibition ticket. Cadle sent his resignation to Dr. B. L. Allen, the party's state chairman.

"My work at the tabernacle is growing daily," Cadle's withdrawal read. "After much thought and prayer I feel it is more important than being Governor of Indiana. I quote Paul of old 'woe unto me if I preach not the gospel!'"

Cadle was named candidate at the National Prohibition party convention here several months ago.

Five of the true bills named Senator Walter, who is at liberty on $5,000 bond pending an appeal to the state supreme court following sentencing to two to 14 years in the Indiana State prison on bankers' embezzlement charges.

The six indictments against B. S. Walter grew out of transactions of a producers association for which he was agent.
